- A military training camp for Polish students is located in Wrzeszcz, at the southwestern edge of the town adjoining a park. It is east of the barracks of a communications unit. The camp is housed in eight newly constructed buildings, each with several floors. The buildings have been of 1952.
- 2. The nursose of the came is to give university students military training without interrupting their education. All males who have not served their regular army tour are eligible for the school. The training centers have been established by the Army so that students may concentrate on military subjects for a certain period of time. Budents from Warsaw and Cracow were observed at the Trzeszcz came.
- 3. Training at the came is that normally given in officer candidate schools. The instruction is rigorous and discipline is reputed to be severe. Carbines, machine distols and machine guns are used in training.
